Cyberbullying is the use of digital technologies with an intention to offend, humiliate, threaten or stalk another person.
It is a form of bullying that takes place through digital devices and platforms.
It can be done through text messages, social media, email, instant messaging, etc.
It is important to be aware of the risks of cyberbullying and to take steps to protect yourself and others.
If you are being cyberbullied, it is important to report it to the relevant authorities and to seek support from friends and family.
